Civil Conversation

In Uncivil Times

We all do it. We all make false assumptions about those who are different than we are. If anything is ever going to change for the better, we have to learn to be in respectful dialogue with one another. To do that, we all need help.

This series of three Tuesday evening forums are designed to expose participants to a variety of social and relational tools that can transform potentially confrontational moments into opportunities to engage in civil dialogue.

Sessions are free to attend, but donations will be gratefully accepted.
