

COUPLE COMMUNICATION I
COLLABORATIVE MARRIAGE SKILLS
DEVELOPED BY INTERPERSONAL COMMUNICATION PROGRAMS, INC

“Collaborative Marriage Skills develops process skills for enhancing both the content and the outcome of your conversations. These skills take you to the high road as you handle the issues of life.”

Presented by Gerry Blakeman, M.A., LMFT and Ken Blakeman, M.B.A., M.P.S., Certified Instructors

What couples have said:

“We had some expectations and apprehensions. Expectations were exceeded and none of the apprehensions came to be.” “gave a way to effectively analyze and communicate some complex issues that had either been avoided or that evolved into heated arguments in the past.”

Who Should Attend?

Any couple who believes that good communication is important to the success of their relationship. You will learn a conflict resolution process that builds intimacy rather than weakens it and reduces the intensity of marital conflicts.

Couples preparing for marriage are required to take this course as part of their preparation at St. Patrick. Research shows that couples who prepare for marriage are more satisfied in their relationship the first five years of their marriage.
